My Dad

Sometimes in life, we meet extraordinary people. There have been many special people in my life, but one of the most precious people is my dad. I will always treasure him for many reasons.

My dad embodies humor, kindness, and diligence. When I play video games with him, I have a lot of fun, laughing and enjoying it. When I work on a project with him, I enjoy it because he makes it fun.

My dad enjoys fixing cars, building, and playing video games. Building is a hobby he spends a lot of time on. He is working on building me a small room not connected to our house where I can hang out with my friends. He's also going to build some furniture for it, too. He is also going to build us a poolhouse for our pool. Another hobby that he loves is playing video games. It's a nice way to relax for him and when I play with him, it's a way we can spend time together. Fixing cars is a hobby that's important to him. He enjoys it and he's very good at it. If you want to find my dad, he will most likely be fixing cars, playing video games, or building.

Walking into a room you can always hear him talking. He talks loudly, like he's proud of things he has accomplished. You can always see him. He often wears old clothes or pajamas, but when he goes into work, he looks handsome and very nice. He smells nice, but since most of his clothes are old he often has an old smell to him, but I think it smells good.

I will always remember the time that it snowed when I was about 6 and I spent time with him. He got an inner tube and he dragged me down the road in it so I could experience tubing. This happened at my old house. We did this together because it hardly snows in Alabama, and it was special because it was one of the first times I experienced a lot of snow in Alabama. I felt thrilled and happy.

I love my dad. I have a lot of fun with him.
